From the Nashville Union. What has Massachusetts done for the Union Army?---The Testimony of 1776 on the Influence of Sia-

The question which forms part of the heading of this article, has been asked, in various forms, by those mercenary politicians, and newspapers, in the North-western and Border Slave States, who, although professing to be loyal, let pass no opportunity, for reviling Massachusetts. These men charge her with bringing the war upon the country, and then, like a coward, shunning its burdens and its dangers. These accusations repeated like a parrot's phrases, without cessation, have had their effect, and thousands of houest people, couple the names of South Carolina and Massachusetts together, and blame them equally for the existence of civil war. A letter recently written by Gov. Andrew, of Massachusetts, to Mr. Wetmore of Indianapolis, in reply to some inquiries made by that gentleman, states some facts in this connection with which the people should be acquainted. Mr. Wetmore stated in his letter that "A committee has been raised by the popular branch of the Legislature of Indiana, to inquire and report, Why Massachusetts has not sent to the field during the present war as many men as have een sent by Indiana?"

To this question Gov. Andrew re-I do not know how many men have been furnished to the Union army hitherto by the State of Indiana. I am unable, therefore, to present you the facts sought for in the form of a comparative statement. And I am not sorry, for the purposes of the present moment, that I am thus ignorant, since the testimony I shall give you will be relieved of the moral disadvantages which would attend the effort of reciting facts and presenting an argumentative comparison at the same time. I may be allowed to remark, however, that while we in Massachusetts have devoted ourselves to the business of the national defense with an earnestness, zeal, and success which have aroused the hatred of every enemy of the Union, scarcely less apparent on the lips of Northern sympathizers with treason, than of Southern traitors and rebels gave of her sons in the proportion of themselves, I have always believed that the Government and people of Indiana the authenticated Southern roll of revohave been alike distinguished from the beginning of the struggle by the fidelity of their exertions, and the valor of their troops. He says: Allow me to present a statement prepared by the Adjutant-General of the Commonwealth:

He says: "An answer was furnished to this question by the Department of War in 1790, on the call of Fisher Ames. Gen. Knox was at that time the Secretary of War. It is contained in a statement copied from the first volume of "The American Archives." It exhibits not only the contribution of troops made by Massachusetts to the war of the Revolution, but also the contribution made by each of the original thirteen States.

The following table exhibits a com-parative view of the population of the New England States and of the Southern States, severally and respectively, according to the census of 1790, attended by an exhibit of the authenticated troops furnished by each of those States and both sections:

Georgia.... 83,548 2,679 Total population in Southern States in 1790.....1,852,405 71,131 Thus it will be seen that Massachusetts alone, with only about one-fourth of the population of the South, furnished 11,962 more troops than they all; and that the four New-England States of the old thirteen, with a trifle less than onehalf the population of the six States of the South, contributed of continental and anthenticated militia troops, a little more than twice as many as the contribution of the South to the National cause of Independence. In actual numbers, the New-England contingent, furnished by a population of 924,407, was 147,-713, against the Southern contingent of 71,130 soldiers, furnished by a population of 1,852,504. Thus New-England more than four to one, compared with lutionary troops. Thus it appears that Massachusetts. out of a population of 475,000, furnished twice as many soldiers to the army of General Washington in fighting the great war of freedom, as were furnished by Virginia out of a population of over 700,000. The Puritans, who were brought "from the bogs of Ireland and Scotland," according to Jeff. Davis, gave more than double the number of troops to the armies of 1776, than were furnished by Virginia, which, although settled by "cavaliers," nevertheless swarmed with Tories. South Carolina, the peculiar home of the chivalry, out of a popu-79,030 lation of some 25,000, gave only 5,000 soldiers to Washington. The great bulk of her citizens were Tories, and had it not been for a Yankee General, the State would have joined King George. Thus, history shows that not only at the present day, but also in the days of the Revolution, African slavery and opposition to free government generally went together. The bulk of the Tories of 1776 were slaveholders, and worshipped it as a disecond regiment of cavalry, of which vine institution, and the bulk of the rebels of 1863 are slaveholders also. Just A third company of sharpshooters and a in the proportion that a State is controllsixth company of heavy artillery are also in process of recruitment. It should be dom. It has ever been, and ever will added that one of the regiments originally raised in 1861, composed of ten of things. The slaveholders know this, companies of infantry, was subsequently and those of their number, who fought for freedom in 1776 like Washington, Jefferson, and Patrick Henry, abhorred the system of African slavery, and left their solemn testimony against it.

The Military Bill.

The Military Bill introduced in the have been attracted in large numbers to House day before yesterday, by Mr. Hanthe naval service, in preference to that na, is in every material feature a gross of any military arm upon the land. The violation of the Constitution of the State. number thus drawn into the navy I am Its purpose is to wrest all military powunable to declare with exact precision. er from the hands of the Governor and place it in the hands of the Democratic party. The Military Board is establishwith commerce and navigation, I am ed without being named as such. The brought to the opinion that about 12,000 appointing power for all general officers, men are or have been engaged in the except Adjutant, Quartermaster and naval service on the ocean, or in gun- Commissary Generals, is vested in the boat service on the rivers, whose homes Auditor, Treasurer, Secretary and Atwere in Massachusetts. Besides this torney General of the State, and it is number, about 3,000 more are believed provided that a written appointment exeto be occupied as seamen, engineers, or cuted by these four officers shall confer otherwise, in the transport service on the authority in the absence of a commission from the Governor. This is in direct This statement would sum up over contravention of the 6th section of the 95,000 men, citizens of Massachusetts, 15th article of the Constitution; but this is unimportant, as the whole bill is in defiance of that instrument. The Adjutant, Quartermaster and Commissary Generals, whom the Governor may appoint, have little or nothing to do, but the powers which properly belong to them, including the custody of the arms, are vested in officers of the same name, to be placed on the staff of the Major General, who is appointed by the Military Board.

In a day or two we intend to take up the bill and show its enormities, section by section. We will notice but one other point now and quote the 14th section: "The Militia, or any portion thereof, may be called out to execute the laws, on th warrant of the Judge, Mayor of a city, or Justice of the Peace, whose authority has been defied, the warrant to be served on I. RITTENBERG the Military Commander most convenient to the place where resistance may be offered or threatened, or upon a Brig-adier General, the Major General or the Governor. At such time the officer commanding the forces so called out shall be subject to the direction of the civil officer requiring this aid."

It will be perceived that the Judge, Mayor or Justice of the Peace is to be the judge whether his power is defied, and is authorized to issue his warrant requiring the Governor to call out the Mi-Mayor or Justice of the Peace is to be litia, and when called out they are to be under the command of such Judge, Mayor or Justice of the Peace. This makes each Justice of the Peace Commander-in-Chief of the Militia of the Township in which he lives, and places the Governor Simple Microscopes, Opera and under his command. Should the Mayor of Indianapolis get it into his head that his power has been defied, he may order the Governor to call out the Militia to be under his command during his pleasure. Oh, astute and incomprehensible Hanna! Like ancient Dogberry, you are calling upon all the world to write you down an ass, and all the world that has read your Military Bill and witnessed your operations in this Legislature will hasten to comply with your request. Should the bill pass it will be an act of revolution
